Garden Club

As the day grew warmer, Garden Club members gathered at the home of Dinah and Larry Norton for an afternoon surrounded by nature.

Our eyes were drawn from the viburnum encircling the water tank and the Pierre de Ronsard rose climbing through the pagoda to the northern mountain overlooking our little town, refreshed and green after the rain. The garden offered many tranquil, beautifully arranged places to stand, sit and reflect. A particular highlight was the lavender surrounding the water maiden in front of the pagoda—a delightful sight on which to rest our eyes.

Our point score flowers were 'any flower' but the bearded irises again didn't disappoint. A showy mauve & white bearded variety won the day along with a sensational Snappy. Tied First – Cath Wright and me!!! Second was Leonie Cantrell. Congratulations to all for the wonderful display. Our raffle was won by Dinah Norton.

Next month we will meet at 'Greenhayes' – the home of Julie Weske and Peter McGill – on 35 Pages River Rd, Murrurundi. Monday 2nd November at 1.30pm – bring a plate and cup for a cuppa. Don't forget your chair and a hat.

Something for the trading table and a point score flower.

This meeting is also our AGM. All committee & executive positions will be available for election.

The flower of the month is a 'Any Flower'.

Save the date for our Christmas Luncheon. Monday 7th December. Details will be confirmed at our November meeting.

See you all then,

Mary Benn, Secretary.

Discover Homeopathy in Murrurundi

Exploring a complementary approach to health and wellbeing

Have you ever wondered what homeopathy is and how it might complement your approach to health and wellbeing?

Homeopathy is a system of complementary medicine that has been practised for more than 200 years. Based on the principle of "like cures like" it uses specially prepared remedies, often highly diluted, selected according to an individual's symptoms and overall presentation.

One of the central features of homeopathy is its individualised approach. Rather than looking at a symptom in isolation, a homeopathic consultation takes time to explore the person as a whole. This may include physical symptoms, health history, sleep, energy levels, emotional wellbeing and other factors that help build a picture of the individual.

A homeopathic consultation is centred on listening carefully, understanding each person's unique experience and providing a welcoming space where their concerns can be explored with care and consideration. Homeopathy can be used alongside conventional healthcare, with prescribed medications and appropriate medical care continuing as needed.

My longstanding interest in natural health, together with my own experiences and helping my family, inspired me to pursue formal studies in homeopathy. Having recently qualified, I am excited to bring my knowledge, enthusiasm and commitment to individualised consultations to the Murrurundi and wider Upper Hunter community.

I look forward to offering people the opportunity to learn more about homeopathy as a complementary approach to their wellbeing.
